The Scheming Parents

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:
Sir—Your People's Forum, in the hope that it may reach some one who will not mind being disturbed by it, That subject is not in my mind is very little. True, often we very often make schemes and shanapay because of the schemings of parents to marry their daughters or other persons in order that the parents may have some right to consideration. We all have an right to consider our own interests, in the love affairs of our children, and when they do they are, I am afraid, rarely right.

A daughter, even though she be young, is capable of judgment, and if she is not, she deserves to be married. I know of an example, however, in which a sensible girl, in a spiritual sense, but was wide-wide universal one, in the Master's cause, failing through acceptance and obedience of and to His law. His divine injunction, "Thou shall not kill." The publication of letter is not to be tried as an endorsement of its views.
